SECRETARY SAYS MAYOR WINS OUT

Logan Introduces Salary Ordinance At Meeting

Apparently the Board of Supervisors tried a different tack last night at their meeting, for Logan introduced an ordinance fixing the salaries of certain City and County employees, including the staff of the City and County Clerk's office.

In introducing his bill, Logan explained that the Supervisors realized that the salaries in question could not be regulated without the approval of the Mayor, insisted that there was no intention of going over His Honor's head, and in other ways talked like unto a man who might be extending the olive branch.

The Mayor graciously put the desired motions in connection with the ordinance, which passed its second reading. Supervisor McClellan alone voted "No" on each motion connected with it.

The first business of the evening was the reading of the minutes of all of last week's meetings. No one seemed much interested in the proceeding, and the minutes were adopted in a perfunctory manner.

The roll call showed Cox and Quinn absent, but before the reading of the minutes had been completed, Quinn arrived.

The three ordinances, which had already passed the required number of readings and had been advertised as required by law, were then brought up for final action.

Ordinance No. 1, the first bit of legislation attempted by the new Board, went through swimmingly. So also did ordinance No. 2. When No. 3 came up, there was evidently something in the proceedings that did not please His Honor, for he balked. He flatly declined to put the question, so the now rather monotonous proceeding was called to aid and Logan put the question. It carried, only McClellan voting "No."

When Logan introduced his ordinance, the face of the Mayor's secretary became wreathed in smiles, and it was evident that he was well satisfied with the turn which affairs were taking. After the meeting he stated that the passing of an ordinance such as had just been introduced was what the Mayor had been holding out for, as such procedure gave him the veto power, in case it should seem wise to use it, and did not pass matters over his head. He claims that the fixing of salaries by motion savors too much of railroad legislation.
